

BS

Ben Singh

Today at 2:41 PM · Redundancy conversation · 3 questions, 9 minutes

Ben, you got the decision out in the first minute.

That is the hardest part of this conversation and you did it. Here is the whole picture.

What went well

Decision stated plainly at 0:22, no euphemisms. Pace steady at 162 wpm. No serial apologising under the emotional appeal at 3:40.

▶ 0:22 the decision

▶ 3:40 the emotional appeal

Developing

Overall · 1 of 3 key messages landed

1 of 3

Message control · Developing

2 of 4

Composure · Developing

91 %

Talk time

9 %

Pause

162 wpm

Pace

486

Words

0

Questions

7

Fillers

5

Weak words

Answer economy

18% longer than the question needed

Fastest stretch

190 wpm under the follow-up at 0:41

More detail: clarity and structure · pauses · tone ▶

AGAINST YOUR KEY MESSAGES

✓ The role is gone and the decision is made

said at 0:22, unprompted

✗ Not about performance

hedged: “your numbers were... it's complicated”

✗ Severance, early

arrived at 2:10, only when asked

▶ 0:22

▶ 0:41

▶ 2:10

Challenge this read ▶ Was this useful? Yes · No

ONE THING TO TRY

The severance package is your strongest supportive fact. Put it in your first answer, unprompted. Try that in the first 30 seconds of your next run.

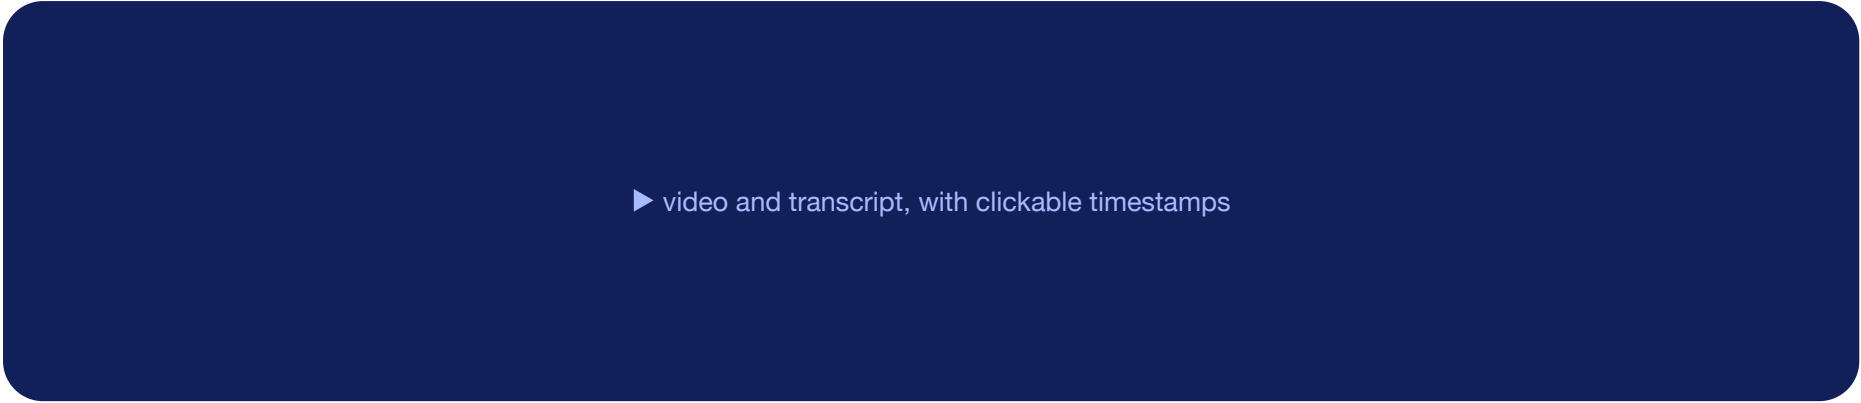

Praktise again

Sarah

Good directness on the decision. Before tomorrow: name the severance package in your first answer, unprompted.

Reply to Sarah...

Send reply

Only you and Sarah can see this. Sarah can feature a standout run to your team as a showcase. Recordings auto-delete in 30 days.

Sarah reviewed this. Composure · Prakto read it as Developing (2 of 4). Sarah read it as Solid: “the apology at 1:12 was appropriate empathy.” Both reads stay visible.